Graduates of this programme will have the knowledge, practice, skills and attributes to make a positive difference as kaitiaki/supervisors by effectively working alongside whānau, hapū, iwi and communities.

Kōnae Ako (Learning Modules)

Mōhiotanga

30 Credits

The first kōnae ako (module) focuses on the notions and processes of 'āta wetewete': of humanistic de-construction, critical to more effectively revealing and unpacking layers of insights, knowing, interpretations and understandings, in the pursuit of creating more conscientising approaches, processes and practices of kaitiakitanga in the context of supervision. In acknowledgement of the bodies of knowledge and levels of experience that each student has, they will be invited to explore and represent, 'ko wai au', who they are: 'talking back to' principled positionings, Māori and non-Māori bodies of knowledge and processes that have fashioned their 'kaitiakitanga' applications in supervision contexts. Students will then explore how and why bicultural choices can be proactively utilised in kaitiakitanga / supervisory situations.

Māramatanga

30 Credits

This second kōnae ako will guide students through a process of hui, kōrero, and wānanga, examining how their personal experience has shaped their beliefs and practices in supervision. They will explore Māori and non-Māori bodies of knowledge to critically evaluate the practice of supervision, and to critique how supervision is applied within specific bicultural contexts.

Total Credits

120 Credits

Hōhonutanga

30 Credits

This third kōnae ako is about moving from a position of unknowing into a journey of te māhorahora/ emancipation and te hangahoutia/transformation. Students will be focused on applying and refining an emerging model of practice based on their rangahau, and exploration of Māori and non-Māori bodies of knowledge. The model will be shaped by developing an understanding of the contextualisation of kaitiakitanga within the practice of professional bicultural supervision to a practice context. Students will be repositioning themselves from kaimahi/supervisee to kaitiaki/supervisor.

Mauri Ora

30 Credits

The fourth, and final, kōnae ako revolves around the student refining and articulating the outcomes of their rangahau in a conference setting. This is presenting a practice framework that is based on a mana enhancing kaitiaki model. The practice being presented has evolved from a bicultural supervision model to that of kaitiakitanga in a given practice context.
